

Breakthroughs In Dental Implants Allow For A New Smile

Kathy Finnegan has been in the respiratory therapy field for twenty years. A friend and co-worker introduced her to Patrick, her husband of five years and they are still like newlyweds. Kathy tells her story, "I grew up as a normal middle class child. After graduation I spent seven years in the Navy, where I was diagnosed with gingivitis. The years were not kind to my teeth. I had severe bone loss, and a lot of mismatched crowns and fillings. I kept waiting to have dental treatment. When I discovered my front teeth were very loose and I felt my bone loss was probably beyond repair, I finally made an appointment with Dr. Jirik. Everyone in his office was very friendly and helpful. After a complete exam Dr. Jirik told my husband and me the bone loss was significant and the treatment plan would be lengthy. My journey would be a serious commitment to treatment and a significant financial investment. Through it all my husband was wonderful and completely on board with Dr. Jirik's recommendations. The most remarkable part was throughout the treatment, the bone grafting and dental implants, I continued to do my job. People who have worked with me for twenty years did not know I was having dental treatment because of the wonderful work of Dr. Jirik.

The week I finished my final trip to Dr. Jirik I found out I had breast cancer. Initially, I did not know my plan for this next difficult hurdle,
